Day 1 Chest/Triceps:

DAY: _____	DATE: _____	TIME: _____
CARDIO TODAY? YES / NO _____	EXERCISE: _____	DURATION: _____
LENGTH OF WORKOUT: _____	LOCATION: _____	MOOD WHEN STARTING: _____

It's the first day of your new lifestyle, the first step toward your new body, and our first workout together.

Today is a day of firsts.

It's the first day of your new lifestyle, the first step toward your new body, and our first workout together. I hope you're excited, committed and ready to transform! Remember, there's absolutely nothing to fear: I'll be training with you through every exercise, helping you push each and every rep.

EXERCISE	SET #1	SET #2	SET #3
Wide Pushup (standard or on knees): 3 sets of 12 reps
Dumbbell or Barbell Bench Press: 3 sets of 12 reps
Flat Bench Cable Flyes: 3 sets of 12 reps
Narrow Pushup (standard or on knees): 3 sets of 12 reps
Overhead Triceps Dumbbell Extension: 3 sets of 12 reps
Triceps Pushdowns: 3 sets of 12 reps
Training, Nutrition & Supplement Notes:

Day 1: Before we hit the gym, focus on these training notes:

This is the muscle endurance phase: we're prepping your muscles for heavier weight and more intense training down the road.

You'll be doing 3 sets of 12 repetitions (3 X 12) for each exercise.

Aim for 1 minute of rest between each set.

The amount of weight you lift should be 60% of your maximum effort. Lifting too much too soon will lead to excessive muscle soreness.

Each workout, depending on gym traffic and your training pace, should take about an hour.

See you in the gym!

Day 2:

Today we're in the gym working on the bombshell muscles: back and biceps.

Training these puppies will make you look like a knockout, especially in your favorite dress.

Remember that we're not lifting with 100% intensity on every rep. Be proud and push yourself, but leave the 100s on the rack. They'll get their chance.

Before your workout, leave work at work and home at home. When you reach the gym, the business meetings go bye-bye and the kitchen cleans itself.

If you're in the gym physically, you should be in the gym mentally.

We're here to build a stunning pair of legs, but with zero treadmill torture. Remember, there's no need to worry about cardio right now! Instead, we'll lift our way to the look we want.

Before we hit the gym, review these quick tips for a beautiful lower body:

Visualize your workout before you step into the gym.

If you have a pre-existing injury, take care warming up your muscles and loosen your joints.

Even though your legs are probably stronger than you think, watch the exercise videos carefully and focus on good form!

With legs like yours, get ready to leave this workout in the dust.

Day 5:

Today is a day of rest, so take it for yourself! Recover, reflect, and relax.

Today is a day of rest. Enjoy: you've earned it!

You might be a little sore from yesterday's workout, but you shouldn't have any trouble picking up the kids or hefting heavy groceries.

If your muscles ache, don't grow discouraged. In fact, you should be proud! Your body is adjusting to your new lifestyle and responding to the challenge. A little soreness means you're making progress. It's natural, and it's why we rest.

On your non-workout days, we'll cover nutrition in more detail down the road. For now, make sure you:

- Drink at least 64 oz. of water
- Take your multivitamin with a meal.
- Don't forget to take your tablespoon of flax or fish oil.

What now? There's a long way to go, so take today for yourself. Recover, reflect on everything you've accomplished, and designate some time to relax.

Day 6:

Keep an eye out for positive changes!

Today's another rest day, so you can relax and let your body cool down.

Even though we're in the first week of your life-changing transformation, keep an eye out for positive changes! Maybe your body fat hasn't budged, but your energy and attitude should be on the rise.

Keep yourself motivated by thinking about the end of the week. You'll look great, feel better and be incredibly empowered.

This is it, the last day of the first week of your lifetime transformation. Pat yourself on the back!

Day 7:

This is it, the last day of the first week of your lifetime transformation. Pat yourself on the back! You're on your way to becoming the best you possible.

Remember:

You should still be eating every few hours to keep your body fueled with sustained energy.

If your body knows it's going to be fed frequently, it will start releasing fat instead of storing it for future energy.

Keeping your body properly fueled can help keep your blood sugar levels stable, your mind alert and your body energized.

We've got chest and triceps tomorrow, so aim to get 8 hours of sleep tonight.

Day 12:

Since you aren't working your muscles, let's work your brain and take a peek at preservatives.

Take a load off: you deserve it after the last few days!

Since you aren't working your muscles, let's work your brain. I'd like to chat about something that a lot of people overlook: preservatives.

It's easy to ignore the microscopic and indecipherable terms on the back of packaged foods, but oh are they important. As a general rule, if you can't pronounce something, you might not want to eat it.

Two common additives I'd definitely suggest limiting (or avoiding) are:

Sodium - yikes!

High Fructose Corn Syrup - danger!

In general, if you check the label on a package of broccoli and instead find a long list of mystery ingredients, put the package back on the shelf. The shorter the list of ingredients, the healthier the food is likely to be! (Not applicable if the only ingredient is sugar.)

Day 13:

If we were racing cars, today would be another pit stop! Give your body some R&R and a healthy pat on the back.

If we were racing cars, today would be another pit stop! Give your body some R&R as well as a pat on the back for a job well done. But if you're looking for a good brain buster to pass time, I'll school you a little bit on almonds!

So delicious and nutritious! Almonds contain a beautiful combination of healthy fats (yes, they exist) and protein.

My favorite almond foods include almond butter, almond milk (minus the sweeteners and additives), or even just a plain old bag of almonds - it's the ultimate convenient and healthy snack.

When it comes to nutrition, being a little "nutty" is just what the doctor ordered!

Day 14:

Today we're talking about xylitol. Use it to make your diet as smart as it is sweet!

If I had a whistle, I'd blow it. Time out! Relax, stretch, eat some healthy food and get ready to learn about an awesome sweetener most people don't know about - xylitol.

This sugar alcohol is a completely natural, low-calorie option that comes from many fruits and vegetables. It works great for baking, or use it to sweeten a meal without added guilt.

It can be a little tough to find, but is often stocked in the organic section. It's definitely worth the search.

Your diet can be as smart as it is sweet!

Day 18:

However, things get a bit tricky here if you want to customize the program. Since we trained chest/triceps yesterday, you wouldn't want to train them today. However, if they're your lagging body parts, you'll basically have to reorganize your workouts to allow for enough recovery time between sessions.

Don't train the same body parts back-to-back. Instead, allow for ample recovery time and reorganize your workouts as necessary so that you have 24-48 hours of rest before training the same body part.

If you're sticking with me, let's get in the gym and get to work on our legs!

Yup, we finally get a break from training! However, we never get a break from proper nutrition, cooking, and food prep.

Yup, we finally get a break from training! However, we never get a break from proper nutrition, cooking and food prep. With that in mind, here are a few handy tips:

How you cook has a huge impact on the final quality of your food. The healthiest forms of cooking include steaming, broiling, grilling, or baking. All of these tend to be delicious, low-calorie cooking techniques.

Fry it? Forget about it! Never fry anything with oil or butter. Instead, sauté your food in low-sodium chicken broth or a dab of olive oil.

Spice up your life. To help flavor your foods, consider adding some herbs or low-sodium spices. They won't add additional calories and some even provide positive health benefits!

Day 21:

Today, let's spend a bit more time in the grocery store with these helpful tips.

Another day of rest? Life's simple luxuries tend to be the sweetest! Yesterday we talked about some great cooking methods. Today, let's spend a bit more time in the grocery store with these helpful tips.

Read nutrition labels carefully! Like we talked about, watch out for crazy ingredients that don't come from a farm or garden. Look out for high saturated fat, and especially watch out for hydrogenated and partially hydrogenated oils!

Fat-Free doesn't always mean good for you. Even fat-free foods can be loaded with sugar, so don't be swayed by popular marketing buzzwords. Be careful with Fat-Free, 100% Natural, No Added Sugar and other catch-phrases. While these options are sometimes healthful, it's always best to check for strange ingredients and high sugar or fat content.

Limit packaged food. Sometimes we need to buy from a box or a wrapper. Whenever possible, try to avoid packaged foods and opt for fresh. Not all boxed food is bad, but it can easily be over-processed, drained of nutrients and packed with sugar. Stick to the land: produce and fresh meats will be the best for your body.

We are entering Week 4 the last week of Phase 1. Give it your all, believe in yourself and let me know how it goes. Share your experience on:

Day 27:

Recovery, rest, and repair are the name of the game for today, so give yourself some me time.

Recovery, rest and repair are the name of the game for today, so give yourself some "me" time. For starters, take time to learn about a little thing called casein protein!

Casein protein is usually derived from milk, as is whey. The main difference between the two is that, whereas whey is a fast-absorbing protein great for post-workout, casein is your save-the-day protein for long-term muscle repair.

Casein is slow-digesting and great for continuous muscle support for roughly 7-8 hours. Isn't it convenient that bed-time usually lasts 8 hours, and that one of the most important periods for effective recovery and repair occurs during sleep?

Whether right before bed or during long stretches without solid food, casein is your protein for the long-haul!

Day 28:

Another day for some much-needed rest, maybe even some meditation. If you'd like to enlighten yourself, let's learn a little about various protein sources.

Another day for some much-needed rest, maybe even some meditation. If you'd like to enlighten yourself, let's learn a little about various protein sources.

First off, we're looking for lean. Your top two choices include chicken and turkey. And even though both are tasty and versatile meats, here's a little secret-chicken tends to hold flavor a little better.

As far as fish go, you can't ignore tilapia. It's easy to cook, tastes great in a variety of cuisines, and it's one of the healthiest fish in the sea.

If you've got to have red meat every once in awhile, go for packages that have London broil printed on the top, because that's the leanest option around.

For all the vegetarians out there, you've got plenty of nuts, peas, hemp and soy products to choose from as well.

Remember that protein is crucial to muscle growth, recovery and repair. Don't skimp on this knockout nutrient!
